Short Bio :

Professor Dr Wolfgang Cramer, environmental geographer and global ecologist, is scientific director at the Mediterranean Institute for Biodiversity and Ecology (IMBE), in Aix-en-Provence, Marseille and Avignon (France), since the establishment of the institute in 2012.

Wolfgang Cramer received his academic training at the Universities of Gießen/Germany (geography, diploma 1981) and Uppsala/Sweden (plant ecology, Ph.D. 1986). From 1987 to 1993, he taught and conducted his research at the Department of Geography, Trondheim University (Norway) while also being a frequently visiting scholar at the International Institute for Applied Systems Analysis (IIASA) in Laxenburg, Austria. In 1992, he joined the newly founded Potsdam Institute for Climate Impact Research (PIK) in Potsdam, Germany, as head of the department "Global Change and Natural Systems", later to the institute's research domain "Earth System Analysis". In 2003, he was appointed full professor of global ecology at Potsdam University. In 2011, he left Potsdam for the Mediterranean Institute for Ecology and Paleoecology (IMEP), in order to help its transition to IMBE.

The scientific contributions by Cramer's research group (145+ papers) were initially in the area of modelling forest dynamics under climate change. He then began to seek a broader understanding of biosphere dynamics at the global and continental scale, including aspects of natural and human disturbance as well as biodiversity. He has been directing a large European ecosystem modelling project, ATEAM (EU FP5), as well as its companion outreach activity, AVEC.

Together, these projects have resulted in the first ever region-specific and comprehensive ecosystem service assessment across Europe, communicated through the scientific literature as well as through an intensive stakeholder dialogue. Based on ATEAM/AVEC, he has established popular, two-weeks long annual summer schools for young experts in the field of biodiversity and ecosystem services (the last six for the EU Network of Excellence ALTER-Net).

Wolfgang Cramer has been and still is a contributor in many roles to the IPCC (Peace Nobel Prize 2007) and the Millennium Ecosystem Assessment. He is (with Elena Bennett, McGill University) co-chair of the Science Committee of ecoSERVICES and a PECS Fellow. He is also (with James Ford, McGill University) co-chief editor of the Springer Nature journal Regional Environmental Change. He also regularly serves as advisor of the German and French governments. In 2017, he was elected associated member of the Académie d'Agriculture de France.
